The aim of the subject	The "Web Programming" course covers modern web standards for developing interactive websites, as well as technologies used to achieve the desired goal on the server and user side. Students develop a set of relevant knowledge, skills and abilities, and master the capabilities of technical means and software necessary for developing dynamic websites.
Description of the Subject	The "Web Programming" course covers the steps taken on the front-end and back-end server side to develop web applications (writing programs to run dynamic websites on the World Wide Web), as well as introductory sections on related technologies, and is designed to teach students important concepts and expand their basic knowledge. This section describes and explains modern concepts used in Internet and web programming, and includes sections on their application and use today.

Subject learning outcomes	- The main purpose and capabilities of the web, the Internet, web programming; - Formation of ideas about the means of teaching web programming; - Formation of ideas about the principles and methods of teaching web programming; - To form an understanding of the goals and objectives of teaching web programming to undergraduate students; - Completion of practical assignments used in teaching undergraduate students on the course "Web Programming"; - Monitoring and researching the level of completion of practical assignments.
Subject Requirements, Academic Honesty, Ethical behavior	Students must adhere to the principles of honesty and transparency in all their academic activities. Copying, plagiarism, presenting someone else's work under their own name and any academic fraud are prohibited. They should cite the correct sources during research and assignments, and make appropriate references when using other people's ideas. All educational activities should be sincerely aimed at personal development. Students must adhere to ethical principles and comply with relevant legal regulations both during their studies and in practice. Intellectual property rights must be respected, and the work of others must be appreciated and referenced.

Grading: 100-point system	The final grade is the sum of the points given for the current grade: classes (seminar and laboratory work) (0 - 30 points), project work (0 - 10 points), attendance of classes (0 - 10 points) and midterm grade: end-of-semester exams (0 - 50 points). In case of additional experimental and practical lessons in the same subject, (0 - 10) points are allocated for the assessment of these lessons. Final grade = current grade + midterm grade
Seminar and colloquium	Colloquiums are organized 3 times a semester according to the academic calendar. Each colloquium is graded on a scale from 0 to 10. Participation in the colloquium is mandatory. A student who does not participate in the colloquium will receive 0 points.	0-30
Project work		0-10
Attendance	For every 10% of classes missed during a semester, 1 point is deducted. Students who have not attended more than 25% of the hours allocated for the subject will not be allowed to take the exam.	0-10
Exam		0-50

Nov This is my third Design

28 for OWD. I tried to keep the layout as simple as possible. As you can see, I chiefly had in mind a blog layout, though I think it would be useful for other purposes. I owe a great deal to the Andreas 07 template, from which I borrowed most of the code to have a fixed menu that works in as many browsers as I could get my hands on. I also received help from several members over at OWD. It validates as XHTML 1.0 Strict, and the CSS passes with a few level 1 warnings (pesky background-color) and one intentional level 2 warning that is a redefinition of padding to ensure proper layout in IE. I release this to the public. I just kindly ask that you keep the credit and link in the footer.
